The Shape of Water

A year after her artistic mother's death, fifteen-year-old Maggie puts aside her desire to set fires and hopes for more solidity in her life. The year is 1981, and the meteor shower of that year is known among scientists as the X-Files. A maniac is on the loose, a man who has escaped from a prison in Iowa and is known to have murdered his nineteen-year-old wife in her sleep.

Maggie's new best friend, Will, is a science magpie and a bit of a dope. When Will's weighty wooden gorilla picks up a metallic fragment from the beach, an eerie change begins to sweep over their hometown. Maggie's hope for a quiet and normal life is dashed when she comes face to face with the X-Files, a government intrigue that's in need of a high school girl. Together, they must fight off an alien threat that could destroy the world.

Though that doesn't mean she has given up their traditions. Every Sunday, she and her lifelong friend Doug Monk trudge through the woods to check the traps Lee left behind, traps he set to catch the aliens he so desperately believed were after him. But Liv is done with childhood fantasies. Done pretending she believes her father's absurd theories. Done going through the motions for Doug's sake. However, on the very day she chooses to destroy the traps, she discovers in one of them a creature so inhuman it can only be one thing. In that moment, she's faced with a painful realization: her dad was telling the truth. And no one believed him. Now, she and Doug have a choice to make. They can turn the alien over to the authorities or they can take matters into their own hands. On the heels of the worldwide success of The Shape of Water, Daniel Kraus returns with a horrifying and heartbreaking thriller about the lengths people go to find justice and the painful reality of grief. “Bent Heavens is the darkest, angriest alien horror story that I've ever encountered. Hell. Yes.”—Stephanie Perkins, New York Times-bestselling author of There's Someone Inside Your House
